

TORAH COMICS

Comic Strips Summarizing the Weekly Parshah

By Andrew Galitzer

Torah Comics takes young readers through a fun and illustrative journey inside the 54 parshiot of the Torah that we read over the course of the year in a colorful and humoristic manner.

The visual images convey the ideas in each parsha in a nutshell. Adults will have fun as well reading the book to their children!

Pub Date: September 28, 2022

ISBN: 9789657801062

Price: $21.95

Binding: Hard Cover

Page Count: 64

Classification:

BIBLES / God's Word / Children

BIB004000

JUDAISM / Sacred Writings

REL040040

ART / Techniques / Cartooning

ART004000

Publisher:

Gefen Publishing House

Wholesale:

Baker & Taylor, Ingram, Amazon

Related Titles:

Parenting and Parashah
9789657023785 $24.95

Rooted in Torah
9789657023174 $34.95

"Andrew teaches Torah with extraordinary visual engagement. Kids and parents will love this."

—Rabbi Jonathan Kroll, Principal, SAR Academy

"Filled with whimsy, wonder, and wisdom! A refreshing way to excite children to the greatest stories ever told!"

—Saul Blinkoff, Animation Director, Disney, Dreamworks, & Netflix

"A fun and creative way to make the Torah accessible to anyone of any age or level of background."

—Rabbi Steven Burg, CEO, Aish HaTorah

"An excellent tool for early education, and a springboard for deeper discussion."

—Rabbi Doron Perez, Executive Chairman, World Mizrahi

"Today's Jewish youth are fortunate to have this resource."

—Avi Frier, National Program Director, Young Israel

About the Author

Andrew Galitzer is an artist and entrepreneur. After high school, he spent a year learning Torah texts at Yeshivat Eretz HaTzvi. He is currently an engineering student at Drexel University. He has been creating Torah related comics material for schools and synagogues across the globe for the past several years, and can also be found these days teaching drawing lessons over Zoom.